

Memorization and Test Mastery Strategies for the Differentiated Classroom

Participants will leave this workshop with realistic strategies to foster memory in the classroom for all learners and to bypass memory difficulties for under-performing students.

We will discuss concrete instructional strategies that assist students with special needs, at-risk learners and average test performers in the general classroom while improving short and long term memory.

What is learned in the workshop today can be used in the classroom tomorrow.

This interactive session is geared for both general classroom teachers and special educators with beginner to intermediate levels of experience in the inclusive classroom.
